Arrangement of this Guide

You are probably familiar with the arrangement of a traditional library. All of the books on a particular subject are kept together in one place. Archives are arranged differently. They are arranged by collection or series to protect the original order of the records. Each section is given a unique identifying code (for example, Midlothian Burgh Council has the prefix MBC).

This means that information on a particular subject may be located in more than one part of the archive.

This guide has been organised by general themes which correspond to the way that the archive has been catalogued. There is some overlap between sections so it is worth checking between them. There is a glossary of unfamiliar terms and an index at the rear of the guide.

Introduction

Midlothian is the local government area to the south of Edinburgh. Midlothian Council Archive and Local Studies Service holds records documenting the history and culture of the local area. Many of the records in these collections are unique and you will not find them elsewhere. The collections are invaluable if you are interested in Midlothian, including family history.

This guide gives details about the Midlothian archive collections and the types of material that you will find in them. More detailed catalogues about the collections are available at Midlothian Local Studies.

Planning Your Visit

The collections can be accessed at Library Headquarters in Loanhead, where experienced staff will be pleased to help and advise you. Local Studies holds a wide range of material to assist you with your research, including:

- Books and trade directories
- Historic photographs and images
- Historic newspapers
- Censuses (1841-1901) and Old Parish Registers
- Maps, postcards and ephemera

The collections are open to anybody whether or not they are resident in Midlothian and access is free. You will be asked to register before using the archive. Please bring proof of identity on your first visit, including your name and address.

We take enquiries by telephone, letter, e-mail or in person. Contact details are given on the rear of this guide. We will always try our best to help you, but please note that we are unable to undertake detailed research on your behalf. You do not need to make an appointment to use the service, but it is always helpful to contact us in advance so that we can make material ready for you. Some items are stored off-site and it may take several days to recover them for you.

Facilities include microfilm and microfiche readers as well as public access computers, any of which can be reserved. There is a chargeable photocopying service, but please note that some parts of our collection are fragile and cannot be copied because this would damage them. There is free on-street parking near to Library Headquarters. Disabled parking and access is available and there is a disabled toilet in Local Studies.

We are constantly acquiring new material. Please ask if you cannot find what you are looking for in this guide, as some items may not be listed. We are always pleased to accept donations of relevant material and can offer you advice about your own archives and records.

We hope that you will find this guide useful and we look forward to helping you in future.

MBC Midlothian Burgh Records

Burghs were communities with special privileges conferred by charter and which had a municipal corporation, often known as the town council. The current Midlothian area included the burghs of Dalkeith (1401), Bonnyrigg (1865), Penicuik (1867), Lasswade (1881), Loanhead (1884), and Bonnyrigg and Lasswade (1929). Burgh councils were responsible for the management of their local area, including education, building control, street cleaning and lighting. Burgh councils were abolished in 1975, when they were replaced by district and regional councils.

MCC Midlothian County Council Records

Midlothian County Council was established in 1889 to administer the county or landward area of Midlothian. The County Council had six district committees (Calder, Gala Water, Lasswade, Newbattle, Penicuik and Suburban), which became district councils in 1929. This section also includes records from local parochial boards which were established in 1845 to administer poor relief. They were replaced by elected parish councils whose functions were in turn taken over by Midlothian County Council.

The Wauchope (later Don Wauchope) family lived at Edmonstone House in the parish of Newton. This large collection of papers is principally concerned with family and estate business, and contains many legal documents. It also contains papers on Inglis of Cramond, Campbell Kennedy of Dunure, Newton House, Edmonstone brickworks, railways and coal. A full listing is available in Local Studies.

WE/1-107	Edmonstone title deeds (1702-1917), Magdalene Bridge, Mussel- burgh title deeds (1802-1927), title deeds (1854-1926), inventories of writs (1698-1861), Don of Newton title deeds (1667-1846), legal papers (1816-1878), financial papers (1900-1965), receipted accounts (1918-1927), family executry papers (1739-1940), trust estates papers (1766-1858), Galloway estate papers (1873-1907), Inglis of Cramond papers (1795-1855), Inverlochy papers (1841- 1885), correspondence (1935-1947), personal papers (1853-1957), Edmonstone and Newton Houses papers (1886-1947), Edmonstone brickworks (1863-1885), estate rentals (1727-1874), leases and related papers (1821-1947), papers concerning Niddrie Burn (1808- 1897), railways papers (1824-1912), minerals (1852-1952), Moredun housing (1943-1949)

The Lady Victoria pit at Newtongrange was the centrepiece of the Midlothian coal industry. Owned by the Midlothian Coal Company, it was opened in 1895.

Workers at the Ramsay colliery in Loanhead exiting after a shift.

Midlothian was once renowned for its paper-making industry. This photograph shows rag-pickers at Valleyfield paper-mill, c.1905. Valleyfield in Penicuik was the largest of the Midlothian mills.

Gardening staff at Mavisbank house near Loanhead, c.1914. Originally built for the Clerk family of Penicuik, Mavisbank was a private asylum at this time.

Dalkeith High Street was packed with cheering crowds for the visit of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra in May 1903.

Non-commissioned officers of the 6th Volunteer Battalion the Royal Scots photographed on 31 March 1908, the final day of the Volunteers before they became the Territorial Army. (Black Collection)

The Penicuik Free Gardeners was a friendly society whose main aim was the mutual support and protection of its members. The Gardeners held annual processions which included young girls dressed in white and bearing baskets of flowers who represented the ten virgins of the Bible. (Black Collection)

Roslin Curling Club was founded in 1816 and in 1895 an artificial pond was completed at Roslin, as shown in this photograph from c.1910.

WM William McTaggart Family Archive

William McTaggart RSA (1835-1910) was a gifted landscape artist. He spent the last 20 years of his life at Dean Park House, Broomieknowe. A collection of McTaggart family papers was gifted to the Bonnyrigg and Lasswade History Society but is held at Local Studies. The papers mainly concern his daughter Betty McTaggart who was an accomplished artist in her own right.

Valuation Rolls

Valuation Rolls cover the historic counties of Edinburgh and Midlothian, not including the city of Edinburgh. Beginning in 1855, they provide an annual record of landed property and list the name and designation of the proprietor, tenant, occupier, rateable value of the property and, in some cases, a description of the property including its location and boundaries. Unlike the census, valuation rolls do not list all of the residents of a property.

The County of Midlothian

The historical county of Midlothian, or 'Edinburgh-shire' as it was often known, once occupied a much larger area than today. It stretched from West Calder in the west, down to Stow in the south, and over to Inveresk in the east, roughly a horseshoe of land encircling the city of Edinburgh.

This means that Midlothian Archives includes records about places that are now in different local authority areas, such as West or East Lothian, the Scottish Borders or the City of Edinburgh.

The boundaries of Midlothian have been changed on several occasions in the past, the most recent being local government reorganisation in 1996 which established the existing council boundary.
