1. Briefly describe the policy/proposal you are assessing.

Set out a clear understanding of the purpose of the policy being developed or reviewed (e.g. objectives, aims) including the context within which it will operate.

The Community Justice (Scotland) Act 2016 places an obligation on local planning partnerships to produce Community Justice Outcome Improvement Plans to show what will be done to promote social inclusion, reduce (re)offending and support victims of crime. The Midlothian Community Justice Outcome Improvement Plan 2020-2023 was published in April 2020 and sets out 40 actions that Midlothian Community Justice Partnership will take forward over the coming three years to deliver better outcomes for those affected by the justice system. One action contained within the plan is to 'develop a trauma informed service that focuses on tailored, structured intervention and access to wraparound services for men on Community Payback Order (CPO) supervision'.

The first step in designing the new holistic service for men was to consult with those individuals who would be most impacted by the service. One part of this was an online questionnaire (via surveymonkey) devised to capture feedback from clients currently in the Justice system. A total of 18 responses were received from justice clients who were on a CPO at the time. The survey found that 44% (n=8) of all clients who responded reported 'feeling anxious', and 39% (n=7) of clients reported 'feeling low and depressed', making up the largest proportion of issues felt by clients. Over a quarter (28%, n=5) of clients who responded reported 'feeling bored', and are 'coping with issues from childhood'. Issues least experienced by the clients who responded were 'alcohol misuse' and 'drug misuse' (17%, n=3 and 11%, n=2 respectively).

Stride will seek to address above findings by offering men an opportunity to learn about trauma as well as offer a safe space to process it in an attempt to recover from past experiences. This will be facilitated by way of psycho-educational groups that will be offered to men on a CPO. This group work will not be exclusively offence-focussed. Instead, targeted intervention in relation to offending will ultimately remain with the allocated Justice social worker who supervises their CPO. Future scope for Stride will look to offer opportunities for men within local communities in terms of employment, education and better access to services.

What will change as a result of this policy?

Stride will seek to provide the option of structured intervention as part of a CPO to the Court. This will not impact on the numbers of individuals who appear before the Court but will have a positive impact on men who are suitable for a community disposal to be given the opportunity to access services and structured intervention.

2. Do I need to undertake a Combined Impact Assessment?

Low Relevance
The policy/proposal has little relevance to equality	No
The policy/proposal has negligible impact on the economy	Yes
The policy/proposal has no/ minimal impact on the environment	Yes
If you have identified low relevance please give a brief description of your reasoning here and send it to your Head of Service to record. There is no identified environment impact from this service. If you have answered yes to high relevance above, please proceed to complete the Integrated Impact Assessment.

3. What information/data/ consultation have you used to inform the policy to date?

Evidence	Comments: what does the evidence tell you?
Data on populations in need	The following three-year analysis of offending throughout Midlothian identified the following characteristics of those individuals responsible for committing crime in Midlothian: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The highest rate of offending was among males aged 20-24 years of White Scottish ethnicity</li> <li>• The highest proportion of people involved in offending in Midlothian were resident in Dalkeith/Woodburn.</li> <li>• A quarter had accommodation problems.</li> <li>• Over two thirds left school at the minimum legal leaving age without further formal education.</li> <li>• 39% of individuals were unemployed at the time of their offence. Intermediate positions or technical</li> </ul>

	and skilled trades were the most offender populated categories of employment (17.6%) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• 38% had financial problems.</li> <li>• 57% had a history of alcohol misuse. 48% had a history of drug problems.</li> <li>• Half were found to have a pro-criminal attitude and half engaged in denial/minimisation of their offending.</li> <li>• Two in three offenders had three or more documented episodes of offending as a youth/child or adult convictions.</li> </ul>
Data on service uptake/access	Men surveyed were questioned on their experience of their Order, specifically what they find to be the most helpful part. Almost 3 in 4 respondents (72%, n=13) felt that 'space to talk about what's happening in my life' was helpful. Similarly high levels (67%, n=12) of clients felt that 'Regular contact with social work' and 'Talking about my mental health' were a helpful part of an Order. A third of clients (33%, n=6), felt that 'Getting information about employment, training or education' and 'Talking about my offending' were helpful, and 44% (n=8) felt that it was 'Easier to get referred to other services (e.g. Change Grow Live, Substance Misuse Service, Peer Support)'. Men were asked if they would be interested in any further support, with a list of support services provided to choose from. Almost a quarter (22%, n=4) of respondents stated they would be interested in each of 'improving thinking skills', 'being better at managing emotions', 'education and employment training', and 'help finding employment'.
Data on quality/outcomes	Stride has not yet collected any data as it is an emerging service in Midlothian.
Research/literature evidence	Dr Sarah Anderson, Lecturer in Criminology at Edinburgh Napier University, provided insight and guidance as part of the consultation process. Dr Anderson submitted a thesis in January 2019, which explored the relationship between two psychosocial processes of change: recovery from trauma and desistance from offending. Dr Anderson shared her thesis (see appendix 1), as well as other relevant research (see appendix 2-6) for the purpose of this consultation. Dr Anderson's thesis concluded that signs of trauma and signs of offending are frequently related, although can appear

	separated within the Justice system. She went on to say that the criminal justice process may not adequately address the experiences of trauma and victimisation of men. Dr Anderson theorised that while desistance from offending is possible without addressing underlying traumatic experiences, “desistance remains fragile without recovery from past events, and towards and within the much-desired ‘better life’”. Based on consultation with Dr Anderson, the following considerations for a prospective men’s service were outlined: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Consider how the role of the Justice system can impact on an individuals’ experience of trauma</li> <li>○ What role can a social enterprise play in creating a service for male offenders</li> <li>○ How best to balance practical support versus therapeutic support offered through group work programmes</li> <li>○ How can non-compliance be addressed and managed in a trauma-informed way that considers public protection</li> <li>○ How can better relationships of trust be facilitated between men and the criminal justice system</li> </ul>
Service user experience information	See above
Consultation and involvement findings	See above
Good practice guidelines	Stride guidance for referrals: A screening tool has been developed which will indicate which phase of group work is applicable to the man based on areas identified within the tool. Questions within the screening tool identify areas of need relating to psycho-social maturity and evidence of past trauma. Psycho-social maturation describes a process whereby the individual develops attributes that optimise personal growth and socialisation. Psycho-social immaturity is strongly related to youth and criminality, while psychosocial maturity is associated with desistance from crime. A completed screening tool is also the method by which social workers refer men to Stride, and the expectation is that all men placed on a CPO will be considered for the group. At Criminal Justice Social Work Report writing stage, social workers can discuss Stride within their report to ensure the Court is aware of what intervention is available. If social workers are considering a man for a CPO with a Supervision Requirement, a screening tool can be completed and submitted as a referral at this stage. For men who are already on a CPO, social workers can fill out the screening tool and use this as a referral at any stage of the Order.
